Don't Let Narrowbanding Hurt Your Business

THINK OF US AS YOUR
NARROW "BAND" AID

Under the new FCC law, businesses and organizations have until December 31st, 2012 to make the switch to narrowbanding for their two-way radios and communications.

If you receive this email:

Your company currently has an F.C.C. two-way radio license on file with the Federal Government that will need to be modified to a narrowband frequency(s) before 12-31-2012 to avert the chance of being fined per-radio per-day of operating illegally. This means that your current license and radios must be operating on new narrowband frequencies on December 31st, 2012 or you will be operating them illegally. Here is the process:

1. Check your license to see if it is already a narrow band license. If it is not, it must be modified. This modification is currently taking 12 weeks to complete and is expected to only increase as the deadline approaches.
2. Inventory your two-way radios to determine if any of them need to be replaced because they will not accept the new narrow frequencies.
3. Replace any of the non-compliant radios in your inventory and re-program all of your radios before 12-31-2012. Again, time is important here due to the backlog we are already beginning to experience with re-programming all of the UHF and VHF radios in our area.

(Company Name) can help you with this process. If you have questions, now is the time to ask them. We can be reached at XXX-XXX-XXXX. Help us both by not delaying in taking the appropriate action. If you have already begun your narrowbanding process, then excellent, you will have no worries in beating the deadline next year. If you haven't begun the process now is the time to start.
